FOREWORD

Four pleasant and profitable years at Peabody High School have drawn to a close. The time has come when we must leave the sheltering arms of Alma Mater and take our positions in the various walks of life for which we have been preparing.

For many of us the parting of the ways will not be easy. The thought of leaving those friends with whom we have spent so many happy days and years weighs heavily upon us. Lest we forget some of our classmates, lest we find that time too quickly erases from our minds the memories of many happy occasions, and so that, in a sense, those friends and those happy days may ever be with us, we present this issue of the META.

In future days, when trials and difficulties beset us, if an occasional glance at the pages of our class book can help us to look through rose-colored glasses at the days of our youth, can inspire us to surmount the obstacles with which we are sure to be confronted, then the META will have served well its purpose.

With this introduction, we now invite you to read on .....

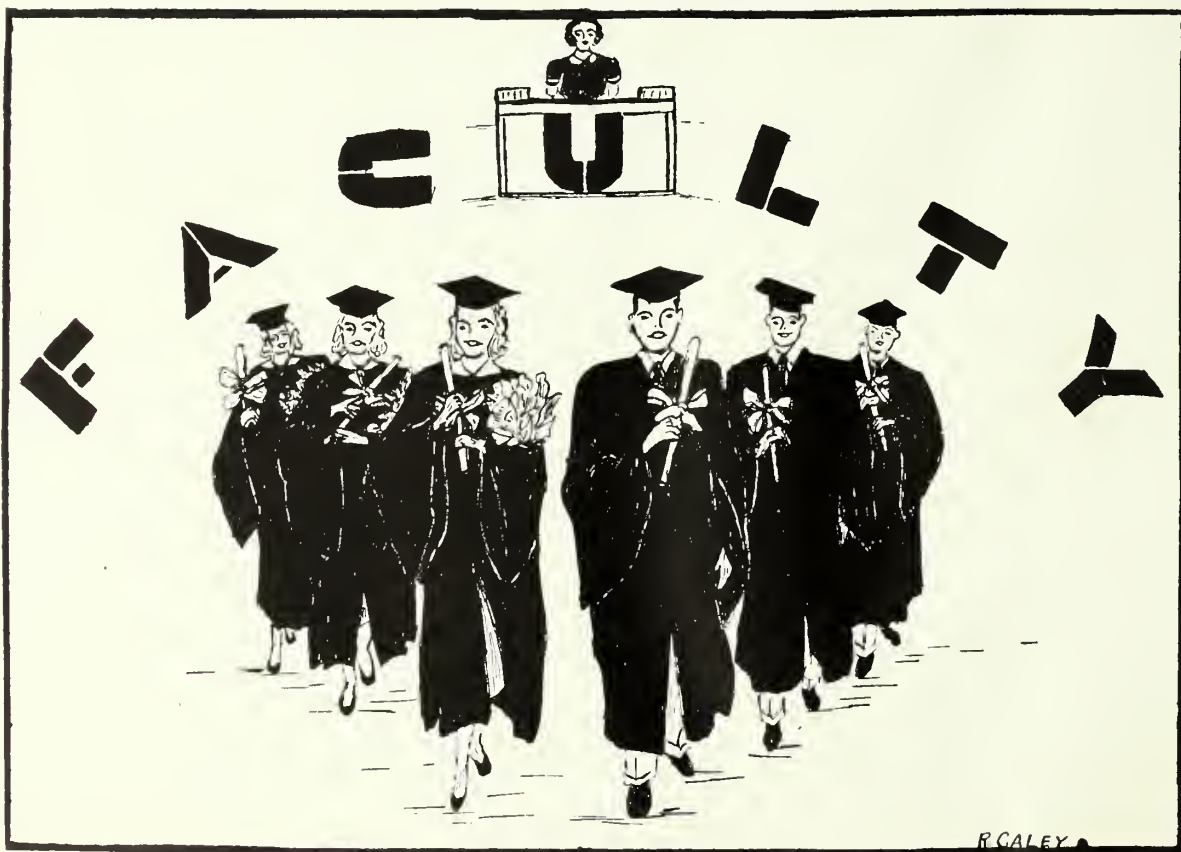

ALMA MATER

BEST WISHES

It's time to leave the school house,
The underclassmen too,
And start upon the pathway
Which will be life for you.

May this pathway be a pleasant one
With trials and hardships few,
May your friendships still continue
As you start your life anew.

OUR PRINCIPAL

Individually and collectively, we, the Class of 1940, here pay our small tribute to our principal, Mr. Arthur J. Barry. During the brief span of four years, our experiences with Mr. Barry have stamped him, decidedly, as a wise counselor, a capable guide, and above all — a veritable friend. The fleetness of Old Father Time may cause severing of active relations with him, but eternally shall there be implanted within our chest of affections a cherished corner for our Principal.

MR. J. HENRY HIGGINS

AN APPRECIATION

TO MR. J. HENRY HIGGINS, our vice-principal for his helpful advice in many of our pressing problems; to MR. MICHAEL F. HIGGINS, the guardian of the treasury of the class of '40; to MR. FREDERICK R. MCMANUS, who assisted us in the preparation of the Meta; to MRS. EVA L. HAINES, who advised us in matters of Art for our class book; to MISS R. DOROTHY LEE and MISS HELEN F. FANNING, our class advisers; to MISS HELEN D. HOOD, MR. ARTHUR V. JOHNSON, MISS ANNA B. CARROLL, MISS ANNE BROWNSTONE, who as home room teachers performed many acts of helpfulness; to MISS KATHLEEN HALLAHAN and MISS RUTH O'KEEFE and to all who have contributed to the success of our class —

We, the members of 1940, offer our sincere gratitude and appreciation.

PHYSICS CLUB

THE PHYSICS CLUB

On January 15th, 1940, a group of senior boys who were interested in physics or radio as a hobby were granted permission by Mr. Sullivan, now our faculty adviser, to form a club and to use the physics laboratory as a meeting place.

On the following Friday, January 19th, we held our first meeting. One of the suggestions made in our initial meeting was that we should make an attempt to remain together as a club after the graduation in June. This suggestion met with unanimous approval.

Every member of our club dreams that soon he will be able to understand the theories and facts which are closely connected with the operation of a modern radio receiver. The members also have visions of seeing themselves operating their own amateur radio stations. But these visions can come true only if they pass the examination in radio which is given to them by the federal government.

In the second week of the existence of the club we repaired the school radio in the office of our principal, Mr. Barry.

During the following two weeks we purchased parts for a combination short and long wave super regenerative receiver. After experimenting a bit, we succeeded in getting this receiver to work satisfactorily.

In one meeting not long ago a few members constructed a code oscillator and now they are learning the Continental Morse code from it.

On April 27th the club attended the open house at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and obtained many interesting pictures. The same evening we attended the Loew's State Theatre and saw the interesting picture entitled "Young Tom Edison."

We, the Physics Club would express in words at this time, if it were possible, the place which Mr. Sullivan holds in our hearts because of the advice which he has given us on numerous occasions. He will never know to what extent his advice has helped us in our school and outside activities.

To him we express our deepest and sincerest thanks for everything.

SENIORS' MARCH OF TIME

SEPTEMBER

- 6—We Dignified Seniors come to school today just to find out if we still know our way around. Seems the Freshmen are coming smaller this year!
- 7—It doesn't take our teachers long to get us down to business.
- 20—The Seniors get a taste of what will happen in our country a little more than a year from now. We've got politics too! The P. H. S. Administration of '40 will be run by Lester, "Peggy", "Dot" and Charlie. Their platform which promises "the greatest success for the class of '40" gets our whole-hearted approval! Hurrah for our new officers!

OCTOBER

- 12—Do you think we Seniors "shine" only in the classroom? Well, you're wrong! We dance too — and how we dance. Far be it from us to call our gym a barn, but the decorations complete with pumpkins, cornstalks and a scarecrow, helped bring about the proper effect. For the records we shall calmly state that the fad at this dance, or rather the name applied to this kind of dancing is "jitterbugging" (just in case Seniors want their great-grandchildren to know what "dancing" was called way back in 1940).
- 19—This is fire prevention week, so all Seniors who get hot under their celluloid collars have to be watched. Seriously, however, we went to assembly this morning and heard an interesting talk on fire prevention, delivered by Chief Mahoney. We are all starting a drive against the practice of giving a friend a "hot-foot."
- 29—Some like drama, some like comedy — the Dramatic Guild strives to please all. Talented actors performed at assembly today. A reminder of the selection "The Button", still causes a slight tingle to travel up our spine. The monologue "The Big Game", got plenty of laughs. (Remember the straw hat that was ruined?)

NOVEMBER

- 9—Assemblies are a vital part of our school life and an Armistice Day assembly always proves interesting. A varied program consisting of musical and vocal selections plus appropriate holiday speeches and poems, furnished an entertaining program.

- 24—The Juniors (remember them?) are also doing their bit to keep us in a social whirl. A successful Thanksgiving Dance was held in the auditorium in the evening. The class of '41 is doing all right for itself (but after all, look in whose footsteps it's following!)
- 29—The Co-editors of the Observer are business minded enough to thing that a little favorable publicity can't do our school publication a bit of harm. Consequently, they plan an assembly — and what an assembly! Laughs galore!! Those P. H. S. Co-eds attired in a conglomeration of elaborate rags, ought to get together with the Marx Brothers!

But, another bit of news. We're going to have a little holiday. . . Just so we can fast before the "TURKEY" and rest up after it. Thanksgiving is always the forerunner of another holiday, so we'll save a little enthusiasm for that.

DECEMBER

- 4—We return after a long week-end. Got to start saving our pennies now. Christmas will soon be here. Now, let me see, ought to start making out that gift list pretty soon. Well, there's plenty of time yet!
- 8—TISH! or should I say Letitia? Yes, its a play presented by the Dramatic Guild. If it's true you get fat from laughing, we'll all soon be ready for the side-shows. The hilarious comedy concerning the life of three old maids just helped remind the girls that leap year is coming and they'd better get busy if they don't want to end up like "Tish", "Lizzie" and "Aggie" did.
- 15—A formal is always rather picturesque. The Senior Christmas Ball found us all in a festive mood. Lovcly ladies and their escorts, soft music, soft lights, everything that makes an evening a perfect one. We Seniors may pat ourselves on our collective backs. Under the guidance of our capable class officers, our socials are very successful.

PICTORIAL WHO'S WHO

- 22—It's here! You've guessed it! Christmas vacation. Then luscious days of late sleeping and lazy lounging. Life is pleasant at times such as these. School is a "swell" place, but vacations always find us ready and willing.

JANUARY

- 1—We've made out a list of resolutions which we are going to keep. The very first resolution, is a Resolution to keep all the resolutions! (Get it?)
- 19—Sigh! Sigh! To study or not to study — that is the question. Whether it is better to "cram" the night before or not to open a book at all. The curse of school life is upon us. Though we have had three years of experience, we Seniors still feel a little giddy at the mention of mid-years!!

FEBRUARY

- 1—The Spanish Club ran their Annual Spanish Club Dance this evening. A wonderful crowd attended and everyone had a good time.
- 6—The Senior Strand Night was a great affair. All Hollywood was here to perform. (There is nothing small about the Class of '40). We had many hearty laughs at the Strand and we proved that we Seniors are capable of entertaining our audience. We spent this evening at the Coconut Grove. The "Gay Nineties" specialty left us all rolling in the aisles!
- 14—St. Valentine's Day and today is the day for our pictures. We start taking turns to the office, where a man with a "birdie" is going to imprint our images on celluloid for posterity's sake. But what is happening? Could it be that some one's facial expression has incurred the wrath of the Gods? A storm! What a storm! It started blowing and snowing at about 4 p. m. and it's keeping on.
- 15—It is still snowing. No school, but what's the use! We are all snow bound. All forms of transportation are stopped. Unless you are ambitious, all forms of outdoor locomotion are discontinued. We have 15 inches of snow.
- 16—It has stopped snowing but we are unable to plough our way through to school. Therefore, the teachers are given a vacation. 'Stoo bad Peabody doesn't have its own broadcasting station. Then the teachers could give us our homework over the air and they wouldn't feel so bad!

- 23—It's a shame, but on this fair day, starts another 7-day vacation. (At least we are getting quantity with our vacations).
- 29—Not very often do the women get a chance like this one. Many moons ago, the Institute for the Prevention of Old Maids set down the law that on this lucky day, a lady may ask a gentleman to be hers forever more. So far, we have heard of no casualties. The girls will have to wait four more years.

MARCH

- 28—We've had lots of assemblies this year, but this is the first debate we've attended. Four debaters from the Revere Debating Society contested against four of our Seniors on the topic: "Resolved that the government own and operate the railroads". Although there was no decision, the spirit of competition aroused our interests.
- 29—Again the Dramatic Guild scores! Oh, Professor! The girls at Boxford Academy had a good time when the astronomy professor changed places with a millionaire playboy! Can you ever forget the "girl" who was running loose in the girls' school? All we did, was laugh, and laugh and laugh!!

APRIL

- 1—A reminder of the great day ahead of us! We are measured for caps and gowns. Tall, or short, fat or thin, we all stand up tall and feel, oh so important!
- All Fool's Day! Of all times to get our proofs! "Let me see yours, mine are awful"—was the only conversation to be heard. Too many people just said, "They don't flatter you any, do they". Our parents are at last sure that maybe we have brains (?) but when it comes to looks, we lost out. At least we have one consolation, these are only the proofs!
- 7—An unusual event occurred this afternoon. A sun eclipse was seen in the sky. At about 5 p. m., the sun was almost completely covered by the moon. Smoked glasses helped a lot in watching nature's phenomenon.
- 12—The big affair of the Junior Class is the Junior Prom. In a beautifully decorated gym, many Juniors and Seniors glided across the floor to the music of "Billy" Higgins' orchestra. It looks as though the Juniors will do a good job of filling our shoes next year.

- 25—The White Team vs. the Blue Team tonight. Looking snappy indeed, the girls displayed their talent in various exercises, dances, and routines at the Gym Meet. Competition between the Blues and the Whites, provided us with plenty of enthusiasm. The "Blues" took the cup from the "Whites" this year.

MAY

- 9—At a very opportune time, the Senior girls and their mothers went to a Fashion Show at our High School. Various styles, suitable for graduation, were modelled by the Senior girls themselves. This Mother and Daughter Night was something very different.
- 17—Again the Dramatic Guild entertains us. Getting away from mystery or comedy, the Guild presented "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." No—it is not a Christmas Play out of season. Kingdom Come is just a fancy way of saying "Dogpatch" and the "Little Shepherd" is a "Lil Abner" in disguise. This "Lil Abner", however, has an "edoocashun" and isn't bashful about "Daisy Mae". The Dramatic Guild may give us more of this. We love it!

JUNE

- 12—Resounding in our halls are the echoes of our play prophecy. The Future lies ahead of us. Our hearts beat faster at the thought of leaving all our friends. The Banquet is a fitting end to the days of our four years in P. H. S. We all eat and drink and the laughter flows like wine.
- 14—To you, Alma Mater, we bid farewell. As we all sit there, suddenly sober and serious, it seems that we are saying goodbye to someone who matters. It must be so or the leaving would not be quite so painful. Yet the future holds an exciting charm for us. We are starting an adventure with life. We are sorry to leave our beloved High School.
- 21—We've had a week off, and now to get back to school—but not exactly. At the Reception, all our classmates are assembled in dancing formation. We recapture our High School for a moment as we waltz across the floor. Our Reception is our very last meeting with "the gang." From here we travel our own road—Good luck!

WE WONDER WHY

Merton Hall spends his time in the Physics backroom.
 Eleanor Hoban let "X" take Bob's place.
 Louis Macrinotis finds the opposite sex so interesting.
 Mary Langan thinks nursing such a profitable profession.
 George Mouhtouris was nervous when he had his picture taken.
 Norman Moquin finds Friday evenings so pleasant.
 Dorothy Perchekos has a good time 5th period.
 Leonard Hilenski is seeking a "Golden Boy".
 Clara Abell finds keeping quiet profitable.
 Clarence Murphy likes underclassmen (or rather underclasswomen).
 Raymond Marques is so full of pep.
 Irene O'Conner would rather ride than walk from school.
 Philip Martineau keeps himself out of the deserved lime-light.
 Evelyn O'Leary has a questionable look on her face.
 Teddy Pavenski prefers girls who jitterbug.
 Onni Lehto is always in a hurry.
 Isolina Ortins has such a good time living.
 Stanley Kotoloski smiles so often.
 Charles Mekeadis likes assemblies.
 Phyllis Hallowell enjoys the movies.
 Robert Grant is always so happy.
 Christine Speliotis likes a seven period day.
 Edith Belestock prefers the alumnus of P. H. S.
 John Marshall enjoys clowning in 101.
 James Pantapas thinks we seniors need more and longer vacations.
 Marion Joly is interested in penmanship.
 Louis Limauro is still looking for his dream girl.
 Jennie Pappas likes shopping in Salem.
 James Harkins has such dreamy eyes.
 Salvatrice Mallia looks happy after 3rd period.
 John Lamoureux doesn't keep his feet under his own desk.
 William Millea is fussy with whom he flirts.
 Martha Petropoulos finds a day off restful.
 Leo O'Brien doesn't care for painted dolls.
 Frances Kowalski has such a swell time in history.
 John Govrusik always feels at home.
 Evelyn Haig doesn't let herself be heard.

CLASS WILL OF 1940

We, the members of the division of 1940, being decidedly devoid of dreaded dementia and of destructive diseases, do hereby and herein, declare, denote, and decree in this dear, dazzling, document, that directly upon our dismissal and departure from these decorative, dignified dens of diligent, delectable knowledge — decanting the following be duly distributed as designated:

Lester Keilty bequeaths his heart-pulsating profile to John Bird.

Peggy Welch leaves her remarkable versatility to Roslyn Shaktman.

To Leonard Sogoloff, Wayne Evans leaves his dry wit.

Dorothy Claffey commits those notable laughing eyes to Theodora Talembecos.

As an inspiration to next year's football team, Ken Beres and Lou Macrinotis bequeath their complete control of the pig-skin.

Prcston Abbott leaves that handsome physiognomy to Buddy Essember, hoping that he will be as successful with it.

To Harold Stanley, Sylvia Swartz commits her position as guardian of the "ivorries".

Ed "Sparks" Dabrieo bequeaths to Mustapha "Mohammed" Trod his mastery of the colloquial.

Eleanor Gourley offers that animated sunny smile as a cheerful guide to those all-fearing Freshmen.

Charles Panagoplos commits his Gargantuan size to John Markham.

To Marion Staples, Mary Dorgan bequeaths her animated vivacity.

Teddy Roosevelt Stocker leaves the custody of guarding the West Peabody Border Lines to James Caravoulos.

Elwood Wilson bequeaths his ability in selecting choice garb to Edward Schervinski.

Eddie Nurmela bequeaths his "Sphinx-icity" to Bob Henry.

Newell Penniman donates his luminous locks to Louise Shea.

Thomas Waters very reluctantly commits his capabilities in the art of "Don Juaning" to Joseph Wilkinson.

Betty Raymond wills her powers of "getting her money's worth" to Leonard Smith.

Phil Waterhouse leaves his all-around ability to Alfred "Gabby" Surman.

Priscilla Hingston leaves her business-like attitude to Shirley Schneider.

Connie Vorel bequeaths her appealing innocence to Muriel Geer.

Mary Bezemes bequeaths her complete mastery of the silver baton to Gerry Bisson.

Phyllis Maguire commits her athletic prowess to Jean Osborn.

Buzz Surman bequeaths his sultry beauty to June Gulliford.

Bill Goggin leaves his rabid patriotism to Boyd Murphy.

Lydia Wilchinski passes on her G above High C-ing to Charlie McNiff.

Martha "Juliet" Fischer bequeaths her stately stature to Peggy McCarthy.

Arlene Feeley intrusts her graceful gait to Meyer Erlich.

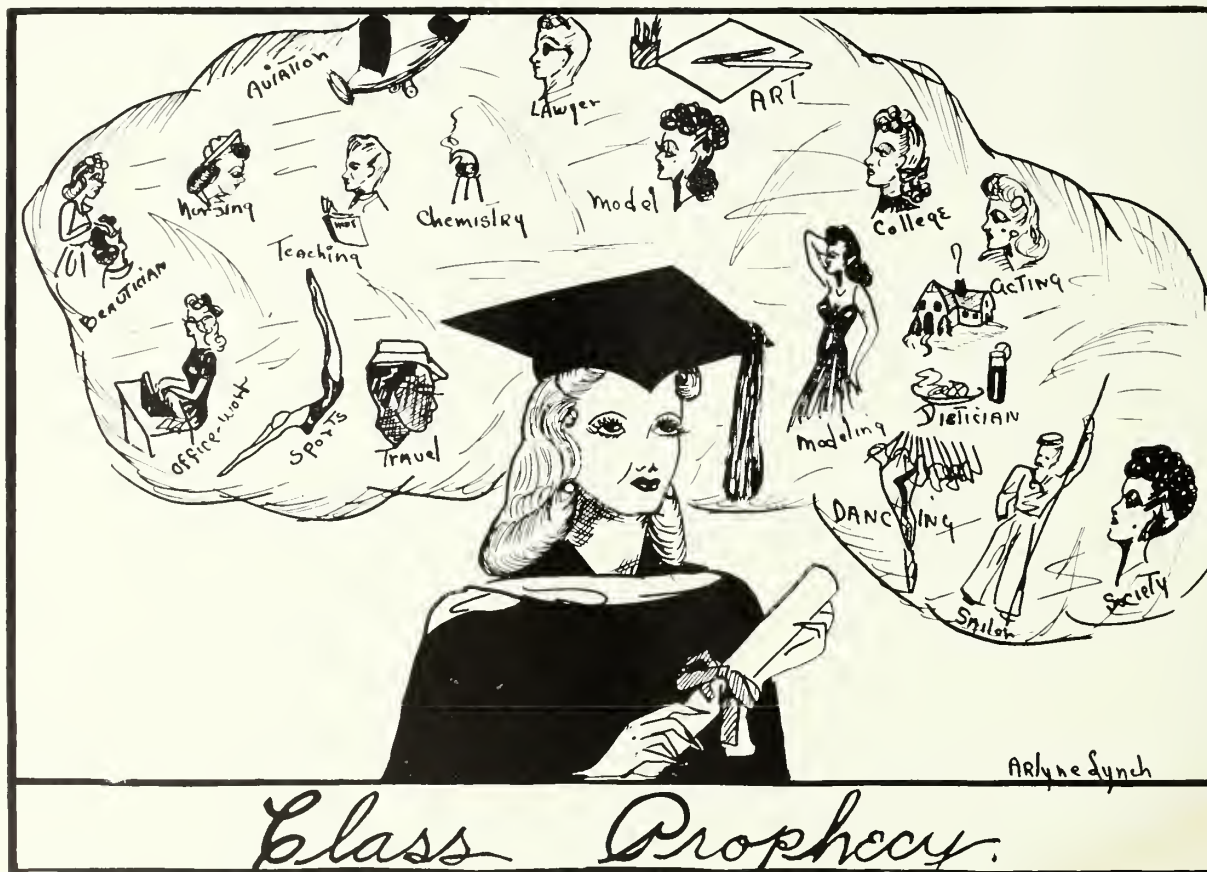

Charles Marshall commits his strong abiilty in controlling the purse string to Irene Lachowicz.

Alli Kankalo bequeaths her "root for Finn Campaign" to George Laakso.

Penelope Mitsopoulos leaves her art of taking up two spaces in the register to Aristotle Vontziledes.

Conclusion to Class Will—Thus may it be inscribed in the gilded annals of mankind that this serve as our final will and testament—attcsted to on this 12th day of June in the year of our Lord, 1940.

CLASS PROPHECY

TIME:- 1960

SETTING:- WEST PEABODY

All had been going well, that is, as well as could be expected, in West Peabody for twenty years, births, marriages, deaths, all taking their natural course in the little community's life. A few changes, of course, had been made: a small commercial center had arisen at Broad and Pine Streets since the completion of the new high-speed highway from Salem to Lowell, built on the route of the discontinued railroad, a bathing beach had been built at the recently dredged Crystal Lake; and sidewalks and lights had been installed on Pine, Broad and Lake Streets.

Yes, all had been going well with the carnival committee, too, except that after the winter carnival of 1940, it had never got around to having another — that is, until the glorious year of 1960! WAYNE EVANS, the great circus manager, home for a rest and vacation in the summer of 1959, had become interested in plans for a huge winter carnival so the carnival committee, worn and spent after twenty years of planning, gladly appointed Mr. Evans manager for the carnival of 1960.

And now, December 1, 1960, the opening day of the gigantic carnival that took twenty years to plan, has arrived.

Large, white signs suspended from red posts are sprinkled all over West Peabody and various points north, east, south and west. They all read about the same: "Finally!! Gigantic West Peabody Winter Carnival. Wayne Evans, Manager. Just follow the red arrows."

That is what most of the rural folks from the surrounding countryside seemed to be doing, following the red arrows. Why, the five planes at the Douglas & Company air-line service located on the site of West Peabody's baseball field had been busy for three weeks transporting guests to Peabody from all over the U. S. ROBERT DOUGLAS himself, JOHN LAMOREAUX, "RAY" DUBIE, WILLIAM MULLANE, ALBERT BLAZON, and IRVING DEBINSKY were the pilots of the ivory and green ships.

ANNE SKLARSKY, who has achieved fame in Greta Garbo roles, ARLYNE LYNCH and LESTER KEILTY, romantic team of M. B. C. Studios, arrived in the first plane piloted by Robert Douglas with CONNIE VOREL as stewardess and they were met by CHARLES PANAGOPLOS, U. S. Senator from Massachusetts, acting in the capacity of official greeter.

It certainly turned out to be a busy day for Douglas Airlines AND Charles Panagoplos.

"PHIL" DORGAN, who had been polishing the windshield of his coupe, came rushing over to greet the new arrivals.

"Why, hello, Arlyne! Haven't seen you in ages," he cried.

At this point the exuberant greeter exclaimed, "A fine mayor PHIL DORGAN is! An hour ago he came speeding through the carnival gates with his secretary, MARTHA PETROPOLOS, sitting paralyzed beside him, followed by three fuming state troopers, 'TEDDY' BALTAS and WILLIAM GILES and RAYMOND MARQUES."

"Hey, Charlie!" Manager Wayne Evans hailed across the field. "Here comes the Red Cross Unit. Guess who's the supervisor? 'BARB' RICHARDSON! And she has ELIZABETH WOODBURY, MARILYN NOYES, IRENE STAVROS, EILEEN BOYLAN, HILJA AHO, and MARGARET MORRISSEY with her!" Whereupon Charlie hurried away to greet the new-comers.

While Charlie was effusing to the Red Cross Unit, two more planes zoomed over the field and a moment later taxied up to the hangar. "Ray" Dubie grinned delightedly from the cockpit as stewardess ESTHER GOSS ushered the following passengers from the plane: ELEANOR MOZER, illustrator with Fifth Avenue Saks; LEONA LARRABEE, fashion designer for Filene's; ESTHER FIELD, buyer for Hovey's, Boston; HELEN WARD and CLARA ABELL, secretaries to Jordan Marsh executives; EDNA PATEX-AUDE, head bookkeeper at Filene's; JENNIE LABERIS, commercial artist for Macy's; and VIRGINIA INGRAHAM, model at Macy's.

The girls had barely gained their ground-legs when the official greeter, now in his glory, scurried over to do his —ahem!—duty.

And then imagine his pleasure when from JOHN LAMOREAUX'S plane alighted PAMELA FISCHER and ALICE FOLEY, the Kindergarten teachers; ELSIE POOLE, DOROTHY CAULFIELD, JULIA SAKELAKOS, RUTH ASHLEY, EVA ZABARSKY and PENELOPE MITZOPLOS, nurses from Chicago Hospitals!

At the next moment Charlie's attention was captured by the chugging of an old ramshackle Ford groaning under the weight of too many occupants, of whom one could see at first only different parts of anatomy overflowing the sides of the roofless vehicle. Charlie was undecided whether to approach the contraption which was sputtering and smoking, when his eyes fell upon these words blazing across the one remaining door of the chassis: "If your car is a wreck, bring it to 'BUZZ' SURMAN'S GARAGE — for better or for worse!" The cramped and disheveled occupants emerged as "BUZZ" SURMAN, the unconcerned driver; PHILIP QUINLAN, "BUZZ'S" chief mechanic; JOHN PRONCO, the welder; THOMAS J. McLAUGHLIN, Biology teacher at P. H. S.; LEO PELLETTIER, P. O. Clerk; CHARLIE LYNCH, reporter for the Herald; JOHN MORRISSEY, of the Boston Globe; BENJAMIN HOLDER, who holds a monopoly on Peabody's bowling alleys; and "KENNEY" BERES, football coach at P. H. S.

Charlie looked at his watch and exclaimed excitedly, "Come on, folks! It's time for the first event of the afternoon! ALFRED SACCONI the famous stunt flyer from Hollywood is going to perform over the Carnival grounds." Just then a plane taxied past the group and Buzz yelled "There he goes now!"

Charlie hurried the group off to the Carnival grounds proper where they could see the stunt flying more clearly.

The "Oh's" and "Ah's" ceased suddenly as the plane flopped over on its side and went into a dizzy tailspin, hurtling toward the ground. Luckily the plane was over the airport at this point and Alfred was able to make a forced landing. The startled spectators, hearing the siren of the Red Cross Ambulance, and assuming Alfred was in good hands, followed Charlie to Crystal Lake where the National A. A. U. skating races were being held.

They were just in time to see the skaters lined up, waiting for Wayne Evans' pistol shot. The five skaters participating turned out to be WALTER JACAVANCO, RICHARD PRATT, RAYMOND COOKE, GEORGE MCCARTHY and LEONARD CALLAHAN. One glance at the program showed that all five had had national or state championships and were reputed to be the five fastest skaters in the country.

At the opposite end of the 220-meter distance stood two marines resplendent in Sergeant's uniforms holding the tape, "TEDDY" PAVINSKI and SAUL KATZMAN.

At the sound of the pistol the five skaters catapulted down the lake.

Cries from the bank spurred the skaters on. One excited spectator even raced down the bank with the skaters, yelling, "Come on, 'Jacko'! Come on!" And here poor "Buzz" — for it was "Buzz" Surman — emitted a bellow of surprise as his feet flew into the air and he crashed through the thin ice lining the bank.

A shout of laughter arose, seeming to have a disastrous effect on the two marines, for, just as the skaters, neck-in-neck, approached the finish, the completely unmoved marines whirled about to see "Buzz", and the tape sank to the ground as the skaters whizzed past.

Three men popped out of the crowd and pulled the sputtering "Buzz" from the icy waters. Pausing a moment, "Buzz" extended a hand in thanks to the nearest rescuer. As his eyes scanned the faces of his rescuers, he received a second shock, for who were they but SAM MALLIA, Manager of the Yankees and his two ace ball players, LEONARD BOYLAN and "LOU" MACRINOTIS.

"You need something to warm you up," suggested the Yankee Manager.

"Yeah," chattered Buzz, "Let's g-go over to the refreshment stand."

"Refreshment stand?" the two players queried.

"Yes," replied Buzz, "'JERRY' TANZER, the famous N. Y. caterer donated the services of his company for the Winter Carnival."

A familiar voice boomed through a loud speaker at the stand.

"That voice sounds familiar," Lenny said.

"Sure," replied Buzz. That's ISADORE SHAPIRO, sports announcer for WESX. Wait, listen to what he's saying — "Ski jumping exhibition next on the program. The skiers are taking their places."

The four went off in the direction of the Ski-jump.

At the top of the jump, skier No. 1, JAMES HARKINS, New England Skiing Champ, was poised for the approach. HARKINS, a golf-pro during the summer, paused long enough to wave to three friends who stood near the base of the jump; COLIN CHISHOLM, National Golf Champ of the U. S. A., "DON" SHAW, amateur Golf Champ of U. S. A.; PHILIP BURKE, U. S. Open Golf Champ. Then with a shove of his ski poles he was off.

The No. 2 skier, little ONNI LEHTO, champ of the United Ski

Club of New England, took his place and in less time than it takes to tell, he was off and gone.

The third skier, dressed in the latest ski togs, ELWOOD WILSON, skiing instructor at Dartmouth College, also had rosters in the crowd. WALTER WARING and HERBERT GILES, owners of a large house-wrecking company, vociferously shouted their encouragement.

After Wilson had made his jump, once more the voice of "Izzy" Shapiro came through the amplifier announcing that the skiers were not participating for prizes, but rather had staged the exhibition for the entertainment of the crowd. Almost in the same breath he called a ten-tion to an event about to take place on the farther side of the ski-jump.

There was a rush toward the spot and the voice of the irrepressible "Buzz" Surman could be heard complaining of his cold feet. After his recent and unexpected ducking, "Buzz" was attired in several additional mufflers and wraps.

The large group of prodigal sons and daughters of the Class of P. H. S. '40 was augmented by many new faces: DOROTHY PERCHEKOS, MARION PORTER, MARY DUDAR, VIRGINIA WALSH, and ARLENE McOSKER, JEAN DUDAR, CHRISTINE SPELIOTIS, directors of the only women-managed chain of beauty salons in New York City. Farther on in the crowd were FRANCIS HINCHEON, Department Head of Algebra at P. H. S. "ED" BRAWLEY, JR., History teacher at P. H. S.; TEDDY STOCKER and CHET SHEA, respectively professors of physics and Chemistry at M. I. T.; JAMES C. BOUGAS, an internationally known philatelist; and FRED FORRISTALL, Manager of Building C at General Electric.

All were watching the announced event. In the center of the group was a team of Alaskan huskies, the famous dogteam of the noted explorers, VERNON STACKHOUSE and WILLIAM COLLINS. Commands of "Mush! Mush!" stirred the dogs to activity and they strained against their record breaking load. Slowly the runners hit into the snow. Inch by inch until it reached a steady forward drive, the bone ribbed sledge glided and the tensed atmosphere was punctuated by sharp cracks of the whip.

Manager Wayne Evans burst from the crowd and led a hearty cheer, then announced that until the evening entertainment — a feature hitherto unprecedented in the history of winter carnivals, they would be free to renew old acquaintances and er—test the worth of "Jerry" Tanzer's hot dogs.

The crowd dispersed.

Wayne, talking with the planning board for the Winter Carnival made up of the following: CHARLES DROUGAS, Captain of the Massachusetts Forest Rangers; FRANCIS BOZEK, electrical engineer for WEEL; "EDDIE" NURMELA and CHARLES MARSHALL, civil engineers; RICHARD BROWN, dog catcher; ANGELO ACTUS, member of the City Council, and "BOB" GRANT, civil engineer, whispered, "Look there! Affairs of state in the making!" The members of the group under their scrutiny, were Senator ROBERT DIANE; Supreme Justice, BENJAMIN DANDES; Secretary of the Treasury, NEWELL PENNIMAN; Admiral WILLIAM GOGGIN; and General MICHAEL ARGEROS.

Back at the airport William Mullane's plane circled for a landing and "Charlie" Panagoplos was on hand as the occupants of the plane stepped out, assisted by Stewardess MARCIA GEORGE. An efficient-looking gentleman, the first to disembark, extended his hand to Charlie who cried in a burst of recognition, "ROGER GILMORE! What are you doing now?"

Roger stated modestly, "Oh, I've just been appointed Advertising Manager of the New York Metropolitan theater. MARGARET DONLON is my secretary," he said as Margaret stepped from the plane.

As each came by, Charlie greeted him and gave directions to the West School building where the evening entertainment was being held. CHARLES MEKEADIS, Diesel engineer, LOUISE DLUZNIESKA, JENNIE DLUZNIESKA, and HELEN GILL, private secretaries to the Woolworth heir, JENNIE PAPPAS, librarian in the N. Y. Public Library, JAMES PANTAPAS, winner of the yachting cup (international), and JENNIE OSSOFF, secretary to "BEN" DANDES

Almost on the tail of the first plane was ALBERT BLAZON'S plane. He set the plane down in a perfect three-point landing as Charlie dashed over to welcome the new arrivals.

For a minute Charlie saw nothing but a blur of uniforms as two coast guardsmen and stewardess, Helen Gill engulfed him. Then Charlie, looking up, cried, "TEDDY GAIESKI! and a captain, too," he added as his eyes fell on Teddy's insignia. "And Captain 'HERB' O'DONNELL, of the Nahant Coast Guard!"

"Teddy's" slow grin had spread over his face as he warmly grasped "Charlie's" hand and his cheeks grew pink with pleasure the way they used to back in 1940 in Miss Brownstone's room. "Herb" tugged at "Teddy's" sleeve and gave him a program as they sauntered in the general direction of the school building.

Oh, oh!! what do you suppose accounts for that sparkle in "Charlie's" brown eyes? Oh, of course!! It's MARJORIE MEANEY, ARLENE FEELEY, and PAULINE ZISKOWSKI approaching him from the plane.

In the ensuing conversation which was rather well punctuated with joyous and complimentary remarks in a masculine voice, it was learned that Pauline was the landscape architect with "Better Homes and Gardens" magazine, that "Margie" was the chief designer for the makers of Jantzen bathing suits, and Arlene had just been voted the most popular model by the New York Association.

An exclamation charged with pain came from the vicinity of the plane, and as Charlie looked he burst into a loud guffaw, for a very tall gentleman in the loose-fitting clothes had apparently over-estimated the height of the door of the plane and had received a sharp crack on the head as a result. Who was he? Why, no one else but RALPH PARTRIDGE himself!! And followed by his partner, MURTON HALL, and bookkeeper, PETER ANDROMIDAS. The corporation, by the way, is that of Partridge, Hall, Chemical Laboratories.

dancing instructors at Arthur Murray's Dancing Academy alighted from the taxi.

While Charlie was passing out programs and directing the way to the West School, a car with a large Massachusetts seal on the door drove by, and as a hand waved, Charlie said, "That was ARTHUR BRAVOS, the sheriff of Essex County, folks, There'll be no pick-pockets at this carnival."

"Wasn't that PHIL MARTINEAU with him?" queried Stanley.

"Yes," replied Charlie, "he conducts a hand-craft school in Boston." In the back seat was EDWARD DABRIO—you know, the linotypist for the Boston Herald, and I'm almost certain that was RAY SKINNER beside him. At a questioning look, Charlie continued, "He owns a ship yard down at Essex and supplies Marblehead Yacht Club with boats."

Charlie's narrative was interrupted by a despairing voice saying, "No, you can't have a lollipop!! They don't have them!!" Oh, yes, it was FRANCES KOWALSKI, governess to Mayor "PHIL" DORGAN'S children, and the poor girl seemed to have a hand full as she strove to pacify the two youngsters. She could still grin in that inimitable way, though, as Charlie saw when she spied him at the moment.

"What will I do with them?" "Fran" asked "Charlie."

Scratching his head dubiously, "Charlie" offered, "I guess I can't help you out, but I know who can! See that building over there? That's where you'll find "KAY" CAVANAUGH, MARION HUTCHINS, and MARY DORGAN, the child nurses. They volunteered to help out if anyone wished children taken care of at the carnival." As Frances hesitated, he added, "You know, Marion is a child specialist at the Massachusetts General, Kay conducts a clinic in Beverly and Mary is running the North Shore Babies' Hospital."

A commotion at the further end of the field compelled all to look in that direction. A huge transport had descended in the excitement and as it trundled up the field the three letters "M. B. C." could be discerned on the graceful silver body.

M. B. C.—Waynes Evans yelled, "It's happened, it's happened!! Hollywood has come to West Peabody!!"

Apparently the light had dawned on the others in the crowd at the same time, for everyone seemed to be talking excitedly and telling his neighbor all he knew about the mysterious "M. B. C."

And there they were, those great executives, those movie magnates, MARSHALL, BUCKLEY, and CHAMPAGNE, preceded by Stewardess EVELYN HAIG. As Charlie greeted the three executives, the remainder of the passengers trooped out.

First and foremost, was MARION LEACH, the famed character actress, followed immediately by two men arm in arm: the one, THOMAS ROUTSES, formerly an employee of A. C. L., now a popular screen star for M. B. C.; the other, CLARENCE J. MURPHY, talent scout who brought "Tom" to Hollywood.

Feminine voices from the interior of the plane attracted "Charlie's" attention. Brushing the icicles from his eyebrows and twitching his black moustache, he bounded up the landing. Before he could reach the door, however, he was almost pushed into the snow as several young ladies bounded through.

A firm hand grasped "Charlie's" and, looking up, he exclaimed, "REGINA MILES!"

Here, "Bob" Champagne bubbled over to explain.

"Regina is our coiffure artist at M. B. C. Studios, and surely you remember BETTY DIACHSIN, our hat designer, and RUTH FOWLER, our wardrobe mistress?"

Charlie was only too glad to renew old acquaintances, but it seemed he was fated not to do so this day for by this time most of the guests had arrived. Poor Charlie resigned himself to moving through the crowds at the carnival and greeting those new faces.

It was not yet dusk, and while the guests strolled to the West School building, a radio station, which was hooked up at various points on the carnival grounds so that everyone might hear, caused a murmur of excitement.

The excitement was due to the nature of the broadcast: the Boston Symphony Orchestra was playing at Boston, and many of its members were former schoolmates of the guests. There was WALTER SAMAS, first violinist; LUCY SILVA, a pianist; JOHN CENA, a clarinet player; and ORSILINA ORTINS, also a pianist. ROSE ROUMAS, the famed concert pianist, was featured in a special arrangement.

JOHN WALSH, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and, already at the tender age of thirty-seven a composer of no mean fame, announced during the broadcast that he and some other members of the orchestra had wished to attend the carnival, but were unable to. However, he stated that the orchestra would like to dedicate its next number to the Carnival. PHYLLIS HALLOWELL was the announcer for the program.

From time to time the guests found their way to the refreshment stand, where they warmed themselves with a hot dog.

A moment later found "Charlie" himself at the refreshment booth. As he glanced around, he noticed many new guests who were fortifying themselves against the cold: ELEANOR HOBAN, surgical nurse at the Salem Hospital and PHYLLIS AKERSON, President of the Massachusetts State Garden Club were conversing over a cup of coffee with HILDA SYLVESTER, manager of a dress shop in Lynn, and ANNABELLE BACHERMAN and HELEN APLIN, dental assistants for a Boston doctor. In a far corner of the enclosed booth three bronzed young men spied "Charlie" and hastened over to him. "Charlie" ducked in time to escape a hearty backslap from DERMET BRADY and cried, "Dermet Brady! Why, in last night's headlines I saw that you and NICK GEORGE, famous "round-the-world" flyers and your mechanic, FRANCIS BRESNAHAN, were attempting to break the previous round-the-world record."

"Well," Brady explained, "we decided we just couldn't miss this carnival!"

"Charlie" moved up to the counter and elbowed his way between two men. In doing so he caused one of the men to spill his coffee.

"Hey, you! What do you think you're doing? I'll have you put in jail for that!"

"Cops —" Charlie gulped, "excuse me, Chief."

"That's all right," said Chief of Police JAMES STOCKER in a more moderate voice.

The other gentleman, who had been snickering, laughed aloud as Charlie faced him.

"Remember me, Charlie? VINCENT WHITE."

"Oh, of course!" Charlie remembered.

"Say, don't tell me you're on the police force, too?"

"No," answered Vincent with a half amused, half withering glance in Captain Stocker's direction, "I'm an engineer—I'm with the United Shoe over in Beverly."

"Well, isn't that —," Charlie broke off whatever he was going to say as his eyes fell on more strange faces in the refreshment booth. Excusing himself, Charlie dashed over to shake hands with the nearest stranger.

He was unable, however, to shake hands because both the newcomer's hands were full—full of camera. The fellow smiled.

"Hello, Charlie. I brought my camera and I hope to get some night shots."

"How are you, GEORGE MOUHTOURIS?" "Charlie" cried. "I hope you can, too. But what do you want the pictures for?"

George explained that he was chief photographer with "LIFE."

"Charlie" turned to scan the room and had taken only a few steps when he was tapped on the shoulder by a none too gentle hand.

Turning around, "Charlie" was greeted by a voice, still impish, though mature, and by a beaming face. It was THOMAS WATERS, physical instructor at the Boston Y. M. C. A., accompanied by WALTER BARBOUR, National Ping Pong Champion.

Not far away were JEAN INGRAHAM, and MILLIE KING, kindergarten teachers conversing with MARY LANGAN, lecturer on science at Smith, and KATHLEEN LENDALL, columnists for the Boston Globe.

At this moment a pan of grease overturned on the stove, starting a small fire. Almost immediately the refreshment booth was cleared of humanity. The excitement drew a crowd of spectators, and "Charlie", who was rushing around madly, bumped into a group of new arrivals.

"Whew!", she exclaimed, "you came just in time! Here, help us out."

Following the example of MARY BEZEMES, who was seizing fistfuls of snow and tossing it into the flames with that right arm which had won for her the National Drum Majorette Championship, others in the crowd assisted with an enthusiasm almost unbelievable.

ALLI KANKALO, the famed masseuse from Boston, EDITH BEL-OSTOCK and DOROTHY VOREL, stenographers for the Metropolitan Insurance Company, MARION JOLY, mystery story writer, FRANCES DLUZNIESKA, poetry editor for LADIES HOME JOURNAL, VERA GREEN, stage designer, FREDDIE LAWRENCE, football coach at Northwestern, BARBARA LECAIN, well-known actress of the legitimate stage, THOMAS LONERGAN, shoe manufacturer and PHYLLIS MAGUIRE, a missionary in China, were among those who were helping extinguish the flames.

A rather stout gentleman with wavy black hair and a red face puffed a little as he, too, pitched in. It was HENRY WALDMAN, who was in charge of the shoe department at Macy's. At his elbow a very valuable fellow threw off his gloves as he hurled snow onto the burning roof. Of course, it was BERNIE ROSENSTEIN, construction engineer at La Guardia Field, New York.

The fire was only a small one after all. The flames had caught the roof directly above the store, but the snow had prevented its spreading.

A small figure wrapped in furs stood off to one side. No, there were two small figures there. One seemed to have light hair and the other, black. And as the last flame gave a valiant spurt heavenward before it, too, flickered out, the two could be easily recognized. Both were celebrities, occasionally appearing on the front page. They were MARCIA PETERSON, star of the Broadway Follies, and EVANGELINE LABAO, the famous lecturer on art appreciation.

A car pulled up in front of the refreshment stand just then. There seemed to be a girl seated in the front seat, but no one behind the wheel! Yet the car was going and had just been stopped!

The door on the driver's side mysteriously opened and a second later the girl's door opened. What was it all about?

The amazed guests watched the girl as she approached, her arm gripping the air. Her eyes were fixed adoringly on the spot in the air slightly above and to the left of her.

Suddenly "Charlie" who had been staring open-mouthed, snapped his fingers and cried, "I've got it!" 'DOTTIE' CLAFFEY and the 'little man who wasn't there'.

Night had quietly and gently fallen. "Izzy" Shapiro's voice came over the amplifier and announced that the carnival activities would be continued at the West School building. Everybody rushed to the school building.

Wayne Evans and "Teddy" Stocker were the center of a chattering group, one of the last to enter the building. Wayne was busily explaining that "LENNY" HILENSKI was here but that the lions weren't so, his lion taming act, scheduled as a part of the evening's entertainment, was called off.

With Wayne, were LYDIA WILCHINSKI, state hospital nurse; ELEANOR LABELLE, clerk at the High School office; ROBERT WILSON, undertaker for the North Shore; HAROLD GOLDSTEIN, the prominent brain specialist; and HELEN HOPPER, a dietitian at Massachusetts General Hospital.

It was some minutes before the hall was filled and the people had quieted down, and during this time soft music was played.

It failed, however, to stifle the voices of two in the audience. The two were gesticulating wildly and obviously arguing. They were CHARLES CHENERY, representative in the State Legislature, and "BILL" MILLEA, Mayor of Chelsea.

Evidently the crowd was enjoying itself hugely for here and there people leaned over backs of chairs to converse with old friends. STELLA SZARY, private secretary to JAMES CODY, a Wall Street executive, and MARY ZIELINSKI, bookkeeper with Gorton Pew Fisheries, seemed busily engaged getting re-acquainted.

A few rows back of them were two more girls. They looked very much like ANNA VARVAS and "BETTY" RAYMOND. "Betty" was talking animatedly to Anna, telling her of the new recipe for fruit cake which she had perfected. Housewives? No. Betty was the proprietor of an exclusive eating place on the turnpike and well-known for her distinctive and original dishes, while Anna was the owner of a series of small mint shops scattered over the North Shore. So, you see, the two had a great deal in common.

A very distinguished looking woman, beautifully dressed, seemed to be holding the attention of four in the row in front of her. A close glance revealed that she was MARGUERITE WELCH, the new dean of Wellesley. Her listeners were ELSIE ELWELL, CHARLES TRANOS, and REVA RABINOVITZ, and MARION MCCARTHY. Reva was employed as stenographer in the Governor's office, and Charles Tranos was the manager of station WESX. Elsie and Marion, to whom Marguerite was at the moment addressing herself, were dancing instructors, and their work was to break in chorus girls for Boston's own troupe. Marguerite was asking her if they could not give a lesson twice a week to some of her Wellesley girls interested in dancing. Elsie and Marion, both as charming and agreeable as ever, decided they could do as Marguerite wished.

At this point in the conversation a voice hailed Reva and as they all turned to look, LAURA WILLIAMS and CLAIRE ABELL waved from the door. They were late, Laura explained, because they had driven in from New York and some of the roads were bad. There were no questions asked her as to what Laura and Claire were doing, for almost everyone knew. Laura was a noted psychologist, teaching at Columbia University, and Claire was the well-known modeller of hats at one of New York City's exclusive millinery shops. After the Second World War (1942) New York had gradually taken the place of Paris as the world's "chapeau" center!

Of course, "M. B. C." and suite had front row seats, and hovering over them were two figures, notebooks in hands. They were MARY EFTIM and LORAIN POWERS, Hollywood reporters of the New York Times and Boston Herald, respectively, and were, to all appearances, collecting enough lore to fill several days' column space.

A small commotion toward the center of the hall was nothing more than BOB MEANEY, Manager of 'Webbers', and DANIEL KEEFE, Peabody attorney, who were having a rather heated discussion about the results of the presidential election.

Late-comers straggled through the doors as the half hour interval completed itself, and of course NORMAN MOQUIN, Coca-Cola salesman, ANNE OSEPCHUK, teaching in Salem, LILLIAN PYBURN and PAUL KENALEY were among these.

It was odd, but out of that large group, each seemed to find a kindred soul, one who was in the same walk of life as himself. Lillian and Paul were pharmacists — Lillian had her own drug store on the corner of Lynnfield and Summit Streets, and Paul had long since taken over the old Curtis' drug store.

There were four people over there however, it seemed, who had little in common. How could they — a ping-pong champion of the U. S. A., a surgeon from the Mayo Clinic, an inventor of small hardware gadgets, and a famed theologian? — Oh, but of course. — They were all four passionately interested in music. The four were WALTER BARBOUR, PRESTON ABBOTT, FRANK CHENERY and JOHN GOVRUSIK, respectively.

At that moment a door in the rear of the hall opened. Cool breezes floated through the building and in walked PRISCILLA HINGSTON, author of that best-seller of the year, "Returned on a Breeze."

A moment later the lights dimmed; a hush fell over the audience as the curtain rolled up.

The program for the evening began with a rumba dance by one of the nation's most talented instructors of the dance, JOSEPHINE FLYNN. "Jo" held the audience spellbound, and at the conclusion of her act was well applauded. "Jo" had recently appeared in movies in a picture fast becoming a splendid box office seller.

Six girls had volunteered to sell candy between numbers. They were ELEANOR GOURLEY, secretary to Doctor John Freeman of Rockefeller Centre; ROSE SWIDERSKA, chief bookkeeper at the G. E., EDNA DOWDALL, lecturer of Biology at B. U., IRENE O'CONNOR, model of furs at I. J. Fox's and SOPHIE PSALTIS, physical instructor at P. H. S.

The girls moved through the hall with their small trays of candy. Eleanor remarked that she was glad she'd offered to sell candy because she was able to meet so many more old friends.

Next on the program was a favorite team singing their own arrangement of a popular song. The girls were JENNIE DOURAMAKOS and KALLIOPE ZOLOTAS. The girls' voices were familiar to most of the audience through radio; nevertheless, the applause told in no uncertain terms that the thrill of hearing them sing had not worn off.

Following this there was a short intermission. When LOUIS LIMAURO, chief engineer at the East Boston Airport, stepped out for a smoke, he found he was not alone. There were two or three others similarly occupied and he greeted them cordially. They were JAMES PETROPOULOS, accountant at the Champion Lamp Works in Lynn, RICHARD BUDKA, a marine engineer aboard the liner PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, NICHOLAS KROCHMAL, Wall Street broker, our old friend "GENE" SALLOWAY, surgeon at the Beth Israel, JAMES PANTAPAS, tobacco king, and JOSEPH PERRY TRUEIRA, President of the Bell Telephone Company. The group chatted amiably for a few moments and then reentered the building.

An interpretative dance was the next feature on the program. The stage had been beautifully set. A large oval spot of light blue satin formed the background for the little dancer who was clad in shimmering white chiffon. The dance was exquisitely performed, every position seeming more striking, more beautiful than the other.

There was a stir in the audience as the curtain went down, for few of her friends had ever seen the famous Sylvia perform. You see, Sylvia, the great interpretative dancer had performed very rarely in the U. S., but often in Europe. Yes, few had realized that SYLVIA SWARTZ was to become one of the world's greatest interpretative dancers.

A familiar whirring sound filled the hall, and some of the guests rushed to the door to determine the cause of the disturbance. MYER WEISMAN, chemical engineer for A. C. Lawrence's, and LEO O'BRIEN, manager of the same, were first to the door. They reported that a small autogiro had put down a few hundred feet from the building. SEYMOUR SALLOWAY, the eye and ear specialist, said to the fellow at his elbow, "Say, 'Gene', I wonder if it could be 'PHIL' WATERHOUSE? No, it couldn't be, because he's detailed in Europe right now." — EUGENE ANKETELL was the W. P. A. Administrator for this district.

As the two from the plane approached, Seymour suddenly cried, "Why, it is 'Phil' Waterhouse — and it looks like ROY COOK with him!"

Sure enough, it was "Phil" and Roy who walked into the hall. "Phil" explained that he was on his way home from Italy where he had just covered a story and that he had met Roy Cook in Paris. Roy was the foreign correspondent for the National Bank, and Phil was employed by the Herald Tribune.

Shortly after this, the curtain rolled up once more. It was an original vaudeville act by Wayne Evans and TEDDY STOCKER — It reminded more than one in the audience of that act in the Senior Strand Night back in 1940!

During his act Wayne called for four feminine assistants, and who should parade on the stage but CAROLE CHRIST and DORA GAM-BOS, stonographers for Sears, Roebuck Company, Boston Office, ELEANOR CALLAHAN, swimming instructress at the Boston Y. M. C. A., and MARY GREGORY, secretary to the manager of the Metropolitan Theatre. Wayne put them through their paces and the audience was hugely amused. — Needless to say, the girls, too, enjoyed themselves.

At the conclusion of the carnival. Wayne read some telegrams, and expressed thanks to those who in any way had assisted in making the carnival a success.

He thanked NICHOLAS ANDRONIKOS, who had offered to donate refreshments for the day. "Nick", who operated a large restaurant in Peabody Square, was just too late, for JERRY TANZER had already volunteered his services.

One of the telegrams read by Wayne was from STANLEY KOTOLSKI, guide at Yellowstone National Park, who had been unable to take time off to come home to the carnival.

Last but not least, Wayne, with a twinkle in his eye, thanked the little lady of the black hair and green eyes who had so much aided him in laying out plans for the carnival. The little lady was a well-known commercial artist. and, of course, it was GRACE STEVENS.

And thus, quietly, peacefully, ended the long awaited West Peabody Carnival, — and thus too, the prophecy of the Class of 1940. May every person of the graduating class of '40 be as successful as the "prophets" have decreed.
